Dear Mrs. Manley:

In reference to your inquiry of April 21, I talked to the Insurance Company I do business with on rain insurance to secure the quotation for Sunday, May 11.

The rain insurance rate for May 11 is $8.45 per $100, covering three hours, 12 noon to 3 P.M., on the basis of 1/20th of an inch of rain.

This is the same type of insurance that we use at the Yankee Stadium, and you must get the required amount of rain during the three hours specified in order to collect. Of course, if you want to change the hours, other than that mentioned above, that could be done. But, since the game is scheduled for 2 P.M., we usually cover two hours before game time, that is when the people figure to be coming to the game, and enough time to get in a legal game, after the scheduled starting time, or one hour.

In case you are thinking of the kind of policy which would pay off regardless of the amount of rain, just so your game is called off or the expected turnout is reduced considerably, I could get the rate for you, but I do know that it would be almost prohibitive.

Let me know whether you want me to place the first type of policy for you, and in what amount, and the three hours you prefer. Also, I might mention that the Insurance Company requires that the premium is paid at the time the order is placed, and before the policy is issued. So, whatever you decide, send along your check, depending on how much insurance you want, and I'll take care of the other details for you.

I will be in New York this Monday to discuss various matters with Frank Forbes, so in case you want to see me, I'll be at the new office, 2374 - 7th Avenue, about 2 P.M. We can talk to Jim Semler then and reach a definite agreement regarding May 30 at the Yankee Stadium.

With best wishes and regards, I am
